

THE SUCCESSFUL PRODUCT MANAGER'S HANDBOOK

Contents

VOL. I SECTION II: LIFECYCLE MANAGEMENT

- 7 Start Earlier, Sell More, Sell Longer
Companies that reshape their products' lifecycle curves will not only live long, they'll prosper.
by Richard Daly and Mick Kolassa

VOL. I SECTION III: BRANDING

- 16 Ask the Experts
Novartis CEO Thomas Ebeling and seven marketing experts tell us if it makes sense to use consumer goods branding strategies in pharma marketing.

VOL. I SECTION IV: BRAND PERFORMANCE

- 22 Crossing the Great Divide
Integrating physician and longitudinal patient data paints the truest picture of product use in the market.
by Kathy Blankenhorn and Lisa Stockwell-Morris

VOL. I SECTION V: CLIENT-AGENCY RELATIONS

- 31 Connecting on Creative
Save time, money, and the headache of long reviews by using some basic processes and planning tools.
by Joanna Breitstein

VOL. I SECTION VI: CME

- 40 New Directions in Medical Education
Pharma shouldn't miss out on four new ways to conduct valuable medical education activities.
by Sharyn Lee

VOL. II SECTION I: BUDGETING

- 49 Start at Zero
Don't base your budget on last year's numbers or on your competitors' spending—run your own race.
by Susan Hempstead, Stratagem Healthcare Communications

VOL. II SECTION II: RESOURCE ALLOCATION

- 53 Think First, Spend Better
Take your time, do it right—and make sure to tap into the internal corporate resources you didn't know you had.
by Terrell Herring, Ventiv Health

VOL. II SECTION III: MARKET RESEARCH

- 58 Real-Time Response
Doctors' prescribing habits can change in a flash—a new tool may help your team keep up with them.
by Nancy Lurker, ImpactRx

VOL. II SECTION IV: BUSINESS INTELLIGENCE

- 63 Information Into Action
Use your data overload to improve sales and marketing.
by Julie Hall, Unisys

VOL. II SECTION V: PRODUCT LAUNCHES

- 67 Building Brand Value
Focus less on products' benefits and messages and more on their value for a more successful launch.
by Roger Green, Roger Green & Associates, and J. Martin Jernigan, RPh, Aventis Pharma

THE SUCCESSFUL PRODUCT MANAGER'S HANDBOOK

VOL. II SECTION VI: BRANDING

76 Q&A: Product Names

Marketing experts explain why it is that pharma hasn't yet begun to use singular global brand names.

by Sibyl Shalo, Senior Editor

VOL. II SECTION VII: MANAGED CARE

80 Waiting for the Clampdown

A survey of 50-plus MCOs reveals that pharma cost-cutting continues to be top priority.

by Tom Hayes, New England Consulting Group

VOL. II SECTION VIII: PATIENT EDUCATION

85 (Huge) Untapped Opportunity

It's not news that US Hispanics wield more buying power than ever—that pharma still hasn't reached them is.

by Mark Bard, Manhattan Research

VOL. III SECTION II: PRODUCT LAUNCHES

86 The Couch and the Airline Seat

What's the one thing that the pharma can learn from the airline industry? Urgency.

by Kashif Chaudhry and Jaime Cyr, Clarescent

VOL. III SECTION III: BRANDING

92 Right-Brained Research in a Left-Brained World

A case study shows how effective promotion creates emotional links between customers and products.

by Skip Thurnauer, Torre Lazur Chicago

VOL. III SECTION IV: LIFECYCLE MANAGEMENT

98 Expert Q&A: Product Loyalty

Three experts offer their advice on how to make customers adopt a brand—and stick with it.

VOL. III SECTION V: MARKET RESEARCH

102 How They Spent the Holidays

Physicians' reports of details, scripts, and sampling during the fourth quarter of 2004 offer a glimpse into what happens when reps leave the field.

by Sibyl Shalo, Senior Editor

VOL. III SECTION VI: MANAGED CARE

107 Managed Care: Confidential

Medical directors have their own ways of making decisions. Here's a glimpse of how they think.

by William J. Febbo, MedPanel

VOL. III SECTION VII: MULTICULTURAL MARKETING

114 The New No-Majority Rules

By mid-century, there will be no majority in the US population. How will pharma keep up?

by Melissa Segars

VOL. III SECTION VIII: BACK PAGE

119 Doctors Behind Bars

Is there a niche market in the corrections system? Research shows that inmates' medical needs are huge and unmet, so who knows?

by Joanna Breitstein, Senior Editor

VOL. IV SECTION II: SAMPLING

120 Crimes in the Closet

With OIG cracking down on sampling practices, pharma firms are forced to justify their intentions.

Steve Tarnoff, The Franklin Group

VOL. IV SECTION IV: KEY OPINION LEADERS

125 Hidden in Silos

With no formal tracking systems in place, companies are using the same key opinion leaders over and over again. And it won't be long before OIG catches on.

Kashif Chaudry and Anne Love, Clarescent

THE SUCCESSFUL PRODUCT MANAGER'S HANDBOOK

VOL. IV SECTION III: COMPLIANCE

130 Orchestrating Compliance

Incorporating compliance into company culture helps officers anticipate—not just react to—the constant regulatory changes facing industry.

Andy Bender, Noah Shannon, and Judith Braun-Davis, Polaris Management Partners

VOL. IV SECTION V: PHARMACOECONOMICS

137 The Big Picture

You may have more control over which drugs make health plans' formularies than you think.

Jill Van Den Bos, Milliman

VOL. IV SECTION VI: CLIENT-AGENCY RELATIONS

142 Agencies to the Rescue

New PhRMA guidelines and industry scrutiny have clients turning to their agencies for help.

Alana Klein, Senior Associate Editor

VOL. IV SECTION VII: BACK PAGE

147 Physician Frustration

New research reveals what doctors really want from interactions with sales reps.

Christopher Lisanti and Pat Pesanello, BusinessEdge Solutions

VOL. V SECTION II: E-MARKETING

148 E-Marketing at the Tipping Point

In order to be successful, marketers need to tip the scales towards something that is truly phenomenal.

David L. Stern, Serono

VOL. V SECTION VII: ADVERTISING

153 The Low Cost of High Impact Ads

Point-of-sale ads are an effective and inexpensive alternative to traditional DTC advertising.

Barbara Orr and Gary Beresky, Poretta & Orr

VOL. V SECTION III: COMPLIANCE

158 The New Competitive Edge

Integrating compliance procedures is expensive, but companies can't afford not to. Wayne L. Pines, Apco Worldwide
Ilyssa Levins, HCIL Consulting

VOL. V SECTION IV: REGULATIONS

163 The Fair and Balanced Road of DTC

False and misleading information is all too common in DTC ads. Here's a glimpse of what not to do, straight from the horse's mouth.

Lesley Frank, FDA

VOL. V SECTION V: INTELLIGENCE

165 Forward-Looking Intelligence

To get ahead, pharma companies need to be proactive in responding to competitors.

Bill Fiora, Outward Insights

VOL. V SECTION VI: PATIENT BEHAVIOR

170 Feelings Outweigh Facts

When it comes to choosing prescriptions, consumers value how drugs make them feel over how they can actually help them.

David Rees, Health Strategies Group

VOL. V SECTION VIII: BACK PAGE

176 Doctors With Attitudes

To find out what physicians value most, ask them. They care much more than you think.

Barbara Winkelman, CME

VOL. VI SECTION II: ADVOCACY

177 Pharma's Advocacy Dance

It takes more than fancy footwork to ensure you and your non-profit partner are moving to the same beat.

Michael Durand, Ogilvy PR Worldwide

THE SUCCESSFUL PRODUCT MANAGER'S HANDBOOK

VOL. VI SECTION III: MARKETING

182 Launch on a Budget

Two case studies illustrate how spending decisions made before launch can help characterize a drug's success.

Eric Bolesh, Cutting Edge Information

VOL. VI SECTION IV: COMMUNICATION

188 Watch Two iPods and Call Me In the Morning

Podcasts are changing healthcare communications. Here's what product managers need to know.

Grant Winter, The Manhattan Bureau

VOL. VI SECTION V: AGENCIES

192 Make Beautiful Music Together

Coordinating projects with multiple agencies doesn't have to be a chore.

Megan Svensen

Marina Maher Communications

VOL. VI SECTION VI: BACKPAGE

197 Judge a Drug By Its Cover

Who says looks don't matter? The right packaging can make all the difference.

Nancy MacCreery

MeadWestvaco Healthcare Packaging

VOL. VII SECTION II: STRATEGY

198 Prescription for Change

Tips on how to keep your drug afloat in an increasingly crowded market.

Daniel Rehal, Takeda Pharmaceuticals

VOL. VII SECTION III: INTERNET MARKETING

204 More Than a Measure

What is your company doing to get its best return on its online investment?

Stephen Gerard, TGaS Advisors

VOL. VII SECTION IV: PRODUCT LAUNCHES

209 No Time to Delay

It takes detailed roadmaps and coordination with external partners to successfully launch a brand on time.

Tim Noffke, IPM

VOL. VII SECTION V: CLIENT-AGENCY RELATIONS

214 Seize the Moment

Here are six steps to establish a healthy partnership with your agency.

Robin Shapiro, Corbett Accel

VOL. VII SECTION VI: BUSINESS INTELLIGENCE

218 Tales of Terrabytes

BI systems improve efficiencies, accelerate product adoption, and help you get ahead of the game.

Bonnie Rishell, ProLink Services

Archie Anderson, ROI2

VOL. VII SECTION VIII: BACKPAGE

222 Late in the Game

Reasons why investment in late-phase spending is good for your brand.

Elisa Cascade and Randall Hurban Quintiles

223 Getting Your Act Together

As the saying goes: It wasn't raining when Noah built the ark. So what will it take for pharma to realize the wisdom of planning ahead?

Marylyn Donahue

VOL. VIII SECTION II: SPOTLIGHT ON TRAINING

224 Everything a Product Manager Needs To Know, But Might Not Know To Ask

Product managers now face responsibilities that are more complex and crucial—but, historically, the training they receive has been spotty. Allergan is doing something about it.

Marylyn Donahue

VOL. VIII SECTION II: SPOTLIGHT ON TRAINING

228 Getting Everyone On Board

Pharma companies spend lots of time and money training sales forces. How, then, did Allergan decide it should do the same for product managers?

Marylyn Donahue

THE SUCCESSFUL PRODUCT MANAGER'S HANDBOOK

VOL. VIII SECTION II: SPOTLIGHT ON TRAINING

231 The Birth of a Product Manager's Training Program

Product-manager training tailor-made to fit a company's changing needs—it sounds like a great idea. But how do you go about putting it into practice?

Marylyn Donahue

VOL. VIII SECTION III: LIFECYCLE MANAGEMENT

234 Defusing the Time Bomb

Just because you're going to lose the war on generics, doesn't mean you (like most companies) should put your head in the sand until the very last minute when it is too late to gain any ground at all

Eric Bolesb

VOL. VIII SECTION IV: PRODUCT LAUNCH

241 Doing Your Product Launch Right the First Time Out

A PMO can help drive a new-product launch team to goal. But as any good coach knows, you don't go out onto the field without a playbook.

Susan Cypra

VOL. VIII SECTION V: DTC PATIENT SAVINGS-PROGRAM

245 Coupons, Vouchers, and Adjudicated-Debit Cards... How Is a Brand Manager to Decide?

Each has its advantage, but one is tech savvy and just might make filling scrips for customers a whole lot more desirable

Michael Edmondson

VOL. IX SECTION IV: MANAGEMENT SKILLS

248 A Product Manager's Guide To Skillful Communication

In this day and age of constant communication, why is it so often difficult to be understood? For product managers it is not a question to be taken lightly. Effective communication is crucial to the success of their jobs.

Melanie Ebojo

VOL. X SECTION I: CLINICAL TRIALS

251 Key Strategies For Planning & Executing Successful Global Clinical Trials

A product manager's most critical task is preparing a project plan for a global clinical trial. But what constitutes a successful plan, and how do you execute it in a landscape that has become increasingly more complex? Here's a clue—It's all in the planning

Diego Glanczspigel

258 Using Advanced Analytics to Soothe the Pain

Analytics can empower clinical teams by leveraging real-time data into strategic planning. Analytics can also drive insight and efficiency across the clinical trial process in the often cited as critical pain points.

Neil de Crescenzo

260 Mapping Patients To Drive Better Brand Decisions

With improved information about how patients are, or are not, arriving at treatment, brand team leaders are better positioned to devise differentiated strategies and tactics to influence decisions. A patient market map optimizes fundamental data and analytics to provide a literal chart for understanding the interplay between patient and product.

Matthew Guagenty and Heather von Allmen

263 Optimizing TV Advertising Placements & Results

With improved information about how patients are, or are not, arriving at treatment, brand team leaders are better positioned to devise differentiated strategies and tactics to influence decisions. A patient market map optimizes fundamental data and analytics to provide a literal chart for understanding the interplay between patient and product.

Dave Nussbaum, and Fariba Zamaniyan